

ESA COVID-19 Protocol

August 6, 2020

NOTE: To all customers who regularly work with Electrical Safety Authority field staff.

The Electrical Safety Authority has implemented procedures and strict protocol to reduce the spread of COVID-19 for our employees, our customers, and the public.

We have provided comprehensive training to our employees and provided them with personal protective equipment, and face coverings to wear when physical distancing is challenging.

We ask that when interacting with our inspectors please follow physical distancing protocols and remain 6 feet apart, and if possible wear a mask. Remember their mask protects you, and your mask protects them.

Additionally, you will notice our inspectors will not do the routine introduction handshake. This is for your safety and well-being to minimize the spread of COVID-19.

If you are ill or have symptoms related to COVID-19 contact your local public health unit and follow their recommendations.

ESA's COVID-19 practices and procedures are regularly updated. Going forward please check out our website at https://esasafe.com/newsroom-2020/esa-response-to-novel-coronavirus-\(covid-19\)) for the latest information.
